The earth in which they grow is a reddish-gravelly soil; in fact, for olives, the drier the carth the better, and they do not require much depth. It takes the fruit of five of the pure oil containing thirty-six litres and a half-that is, about one hundred and the pounds in weight; and even this amount cannot be reckoned upon oftener than once in every two years. ers, I may say that I was privileged to go whither I would without let or hindrance.

A solitary boy with a small gun is, I am inclined to think, no more dangurous to his neighbors than the small cataputist, and I can only remember one contretemps attending my earlier efforts. On that occasion I let fly at some game bird, a sparrow for choice, which had taken refuge in a thick hedge. The bird's fate I never ascertained, but it probably died of fright. For on the instant a wild roar, followed by a volley of had language, warned me that I had peppered a min who was digging in the garden on the further side of the hedge. Fortunately the injured individual's back was toward me, and he was wearing stout cordurys. But he evidenced the fact of heirs hil by clapping his hand to his steru, and daneing like a Pentecostal revivalist, while he ded myself, my gun, and everything that was mine, upstairs and downstairs. The shilling with which eventually, and through the meastion of my firm ally, our own gurdener, I purchased his forgiveness and promise of secrecy may be said to have represented for me in those days more than the live pound note given to the keeper at the end of a big battle.—

Secretary Shaw Orders It Taken From Alexandria to Abingdon.

IS AFTER SLEMP'S SUPPORT

Said That There is An Agreement to Support Shaw for Presidency.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, D. C., September 25. Secretary Shaw will spend all of nex week and two days of the following tellng the voters of Virginia why should vote for Judge Lewis in the coming gubernatorial election. His itinerary has not been definitely agreed upon, but it will include every section of the State. He will speak in Richmond, Norfolk, Newport News, Lynchburg, Staunton and Danville. He also expects to visit several lesser towns during his trip. The tour of he State will be made under the auspices of the Republican State Central Commitvill accompany Secretary Shaw.

will accompany Secretary Shaw.

There is cumulative evidence of the truth of the report that there is an understanding between the Siemp organization in Virginia and Secretary Shaw whereby the latter is to have the advantage of the Siemp support in his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination in 1908.

REVENUE OFFICE MOVED.

REVENUE OFFICE MOVED.

To-day the Secretary issued an order removing the offices of internal revenue for the Western District of Virginia from Alexandria to Abingdon. No reason has been assigned for this action. Every one conversant with the situation knows that Lynchburg is the logical location for the office, being in the centre of population for the district, and in the centre of business of the office. Politics aside, all parties admit that the office should have gone to this point, but Collector Summers and Representative Slemp wanted the office in the Ninth District and at Abingdon, and, though that place is two hundred miles from the centre of the district, it has been decided to locate the office there. This is said to be one of the concessions on the part of Secretary Shaw in return for the support of the Slemp organization.

Those familiar with the situation believe concessions on the part of secretary snaw in return for the support of the Slemp organization.

Those familiar with the situation believe that Secretary Shaw will get the Virginia delegation to the next national convention. He is the only one of the reputed Republican aspirants who has been invited to take part in the campaign in the State. Some weeks ago he delivered a specon at Roanoke, where he created great enthusiasm among the Virginia Republicans and was greeted as the next President of the United States.

SHAW HELPED THEM?

As has been said before, there is a somewhat well-defined rumor to the effect that after they had been turned down by Chairman Cortelyou, of the Republican National Committee, in their solicitation for funds, the Slempa appealed to sources close to Secretary Shaw for aid, and they did not go away empty-handed. Whether this be true or nef, the fact remains that the Virginia Republicans got funds from outside the State to prepay the delinquent poli taxes, and it is denied by the Republican National Committee that they came from its treasury.

FAMOUS STATESMEN.

Some of Them Who Met With Keen Disappointment.

It is probably as annoying to an expect ant minister to be offered what he re ant minister to be offered what he re-gards as an inferior post as to be entirely gnored, Sir Robert Peel, in December 1834, offered Lord Ashley (subsequently the Early of Shaftesbury) a seat on the Board of Admirally, which Lord Ashley, thinking it altogether beneath him, promptly refused. "Had I not," he writes in his diary, "by God's grace and the study of religion subdued the passion of my youth, I should now have been heart proken. Canning, eight years ago, offered me, as a neophyte, a seat at one of the boards, the first step in a young states man's life. If I am not now worthy of more, it is surely better to cease to be a candidate for public honors. Yet Peel's letter, so full of flummery, would lead any one to believe that I was a host of excellency. The thing is a contradiction." However, it is interesting to note that he accepted the post subsequently. He was satisfied that it was of more im-

In 1839 Feel was again engaged in making a government, Queen Victoria had hardly been two years on the throne and was only twenty years of ago. Feel invited Lord Ashley to necept a post in the Royal Household, traing that he desired to have around "this young woman, on whose moral and religious character depends the welfare of millions of human beings," persons whose conversation would tend to her moral improvement. Lord Ashley neknowledges that he was "thunderstruck," whon he received Feel's letter, as he had aspired to a far higher position that that, as he says, of a metre court puppet. But his reply edissifed it he was willing to take. "He desired it he was willing to take." However, this administration to the court of constituted. This sale is being made, not on account of any insolvency, but for a dissolution of the partnership. The plant is now in operation and running on a paying basis. Satisfactory arrangements can be made with two of the present partners to continue their routes (which embrace about two-thirds of the business) with purchaser if desired. Plant open for inspection.
